“ Arrivederci Nonna, puoi volare.. This beautiful, strong Italian Grandmother of mine never lost her sense of humor or ever complained. She was and is a inspiration to myself and all of her children and grandchildren.

I was blessed to have been her first grandchild and had been to her house daily throughout my childhood. I have so many special memories that the two of us shared together. Playing jacks at the kitchen table, Birthday Parties and Christmas dinners, Laying down together, as you made shadow bunny figures on the wall to put me asleep, Playing with Kathy and waiting for our family Sunday Rigatoni dinner, you and grandpa putting the chipmunks album on for me and letting me watch H& R Puffenstuff. You singing the song Tammy my love, You Trying to teach me Italian. You sending me out into the Garden to pick cucumbers and Tomatoes for dinner. You were so patient and loving with everyone and so much laughter!

I had you all to myself for so many years and then Wendy came along, that cute, curly headed, adorable 2nd granddaughter and you taught me to share the TV and you. Less H& R Puff and more Sesame street. lol.

*I will never forget your love and I pray that I can share the same types of Memories with my first Grand Daughter keeping all of those wonderful moments of time alive. I love you to the moon and beyond. Some day I know we will be together once again. Until then run free Grandma and let the wind take you to places in my dreams.

Btw grandma was born in long Island not Italy. She didn't speak Italian and she never went to Italy. Her parents were immigrants from Italy but that's it. Thats like me saying I'm German because my grandpa was from Germany.

“ Oh my sweet grandma, how the days I remember coming to your house everyday with grandma Marie and watching your favorite soap Opra’s lounging around eating snacks, grandma always made sure you had clean linen and a hot meal. The days we would just look outside and enjoy the beauty of nature even if was raining or snowing, the Christmas party’s we would have at your home and so many more memories. I love you from the bottom of my heart, I hope you are at peace, and can finally rest. You are a fighter, I’m proud of you fighting this long, you no longer have to fight grandma. May god rest your beautiful soul with great grandpa and aunt ruthanne, til the day we meet again, I love you grandma ❤️

I love you so much!

I miss the soap operas so much 😞 I remember when hooking up the keyboard to the internet on the computer was a thing and her and grandma used to get so mad trying to connect it for me so I could watch my shows online LMFAO the length she would go to just to make sure I had something to do.

“ Rest In Peace great grandma. I have so many wonderful memories that I have been blessed with. From eating boxes upon boxes of chocolate covered raisins at your place, from walking to go get ice cream , and from always picking all the flowers out front and getting in trouble by the building people. Haha.

I love you so much and am so sorry you didn't get the chance to meet your great great grandchildren but they know who you are and will always be reminded of what a special person you were.

With lots of love from me and my family ❤️
