“ Coke, as she was known in high school was my very very best friend. We were together all of the time that we could be. I remember one thing that happened. she was always worried about her ears sticking out and one time her haircut got a little bit short and her ears showed. We had plans to go to the fair that night and she fretted about her hair and her ears searching for something we could do about it. We decided that maybe scotch tape would work and we taped her ears down. It worked..... until we met two cute boys at the fairground and we were talking to them ... the scotch tape on one of her ears came loose and her ear popped out. Of course it ruined our conversation with those cute boys as we couldn't stop giggling over it. Oh those wonderful memories I have of her. Bless you Coke I will always remember those times with you.
