“ Miss Armentrout seemed to tirelessly love her kids. Most every child she recognized and acknowledged well into adulthood. Few of us talk long about our best teachers without mentioning her name as one that touched our lives. God truly blessed us when he sent her our way. xoxo##imported-begin##Sim Boggs##imported-end##

“ Glenda was one of the kindest and giving people that I've ever known. She was my mentor teacher my first year of teaching, something that she did for many of us. When I adopted my children she was there with encouragement every step of the way. She was very good at organizing everyone into doing what she wanted them to do. For years all the teachers stayed late the day before Ground Hogs Day to make special cookies, because Glenda really believed it was something we needed to do. We all made popcorn balls at Christmas and homemade Easter candy because it was important to her. No one complained because we were having so much fun doing it. Even though she always told us that only men can become angels I know that she is in heaven with her wings, because no one did more to earn them than Glenda.##imported-begin##Karen Moerman##imported-end##

“ Miss Armentrout was my kindergarten teacher way back when. My mother tells me I was so afraid of going school that Miss Armentrout took me under her wing. She would squeeze my fat chubby cheeks so hard it brought tears to my eyes. She lived in those apartments across from Central and I too lived in the area. I would walk my dog to her place she would invite us in. We'd talk and eat cookies. I loved her dearly. I was her Teachers Aide in the late, late 70's. She was fantastic with the kids. However, that experience working with kids made my decision a little easier I chose a different career. She was a mold I could not fill. Over several years we have kept in contact by letters and cards. It wasn't until recently I started calling her Glenda. It's always been Miss Armentrout. I will miss her greatly. She will be in my heart forever. My prayers to her family. Janell###imported-begin##Janell (Goodroe) Phillips###imported-end##
