“ Death has no significance

Death has no significance. It is of no consequence. I just went next door. Nothing happened.

Everyhting stays exactly as it was.

I am I and you are you and the old life that we have spent together in such heartfelt unity

Stays untouched and does not change.

We are still for each other what we always were.

Call me with the same familiar name. Speak about me as cheerful as always.

Don't change your tone. Don't show a formal or sad face.

Laugh, as we always laughed about our little jokes which we enjoyed together.

Play, smile, think about me, pray for me.

Keep my name in your memories as it always was. It should be spoken with ease and without the smallest hint of a shadow over it. Everything continues, as it was, without interruption.

What is this death, but an almost not noticeable incident ?

Why should I disappear out of your thoughts, just because I am no longer visible ?

I am only waiting for you, somewhere very close, just around the corner, for a short while.

Everything is well.

My thoughts are with all of you
