“ For many years Jim has been a close and trusted friend. As a “people person” he had always considered the well-being of those who were close before considering his own. Unselfishly he has always been available, and so many times somehow he would just seem to know, he would make a call or just stop by, and always, if it were asked, Jim would make it work somehow, making himself available to a friend. Over years we have shared our highs and lows, encouraging each other when times seemed tough and celebrating together when times were good. Always, if Jim felt there were some way he could be of service, he would offer. For me, there were many good times spent with Jim, my first steelhead, my first walleye, many great mushroom patches, it would be hard to be as good of a friend as Jim has been. Jim will be sorely missed by many. Marty Embrey
