“ My dear dad. Where do I begin. My heart is breaking with you not here. Knowing you are at peace and with mom again is all that makes it bearable. You were the best father a girl could have. You were always there for me and taught me many things that still guide me though life. I know I've made mistakes and disappointed you a few times, but you always loved me even so. God broke the mold when he made you. He gave our family the best. You will live on in the hearts of all that loved you, and that is many people. Rest in peace dad. You earned your wings and your place in heaven. Love you always, your daughter Debbie

“ You were the best Grandpa I could've ever had. Just a great man all around. I can't remember too many things because I was younger for a lot of it, but one of my fondest memories was one summer when you were wearing a super tight wetsuit and you had that silly hat with the hair attached and that big wooden cane. You looked hilarious and were acting so goofy. lol I know I get some of my sense of humor from you. I love you Grandpa and will continue to try my best to be somewhere close to as good of a man as you were. R.I.P. <3

I guess I can't edit this 😞.. I missed a couple words and spelled a couple wrong, but it still tells what I wanted to say.
