“ My handsome son, came into this world almost 3 weeks early so momma could win the baby birthday bet. I will never forget your smile, your heart of gold or your monkey ear squeaks. You were the best parts of me. You gave me a key chain that says your all that you are because if me, well son I wish i would have told you that I am all that I am because of you. You made me a momma and made me want to be a better person, you filled my heart with happiness and joy far beyond anything I could ever imagine. You ignited my soul. When you were in my arms I knew then that I would die a thousand times before I ever let anything or anyone harm you. I wish I could have been able to prevent this, somehow, some way. No parent should ever have to bury their child, their heart, no parent should ever have to feel this loss and sorrow. I do not know how to go on from here. I know you would want me to be strong. Could you please loan me a little of your strength as you always have? I love you my son, beyond the highest mountains and deeper than any ocean, more than all the galaxies. I will see you again son, I insist and what a day that will be. For now, you are with grandma and grandpa and your Dad and so many others whom you have loved and missed. You are in paradise. I will miss you so very much. I love you with all that I am forever, eternally.
